CHURCH ORGANISM FOR COMMON GOOD DECLARES ROWLISON

Pastor of First Congregational Church Tells of Function of the Gospel

"The Use of Diversity of Talents for the Common Good" was the topic chosen by Rev. C. C. Rowlison for his sermon at the First Congregational church Sunday morning. He said in part:

"An organism is the most marvelous of created things. Man is a wonderful inventor, and we are astonished at his achievements; but man has never been able to accomplish one thing that nature is constantly doing with most lavish hand—man has never succeeded in creating an organism. A tree, an animal, a man, living, breathing, each part of its organism a vital part of the whole—that man has never been able to invent or even to imitate.

"But why should man do what nature does so prodigally? It is rather his business to go beyond nature than to duplicate nature, and that he is able to accomplish by his mechanical genius. By his inventions, man has been able to extend the human organism until a machine becomes a great extension of the hand or the leg, until his capacity for lifting and thrusting, for walking and leaping are extended almost infinitely.

"Yet however much he may extend the capacity of the organism, it is the organism itself which is the basis of all his achievement, and indeed which is the crowning glory of life. When the organism becomes transformed into a machine, as in some modern operations in factories, as in a few industrial occupations in all times, then we produce 'The Man-with the Hoe,' the slave of the loom, or some other form of dehumanizing activity.

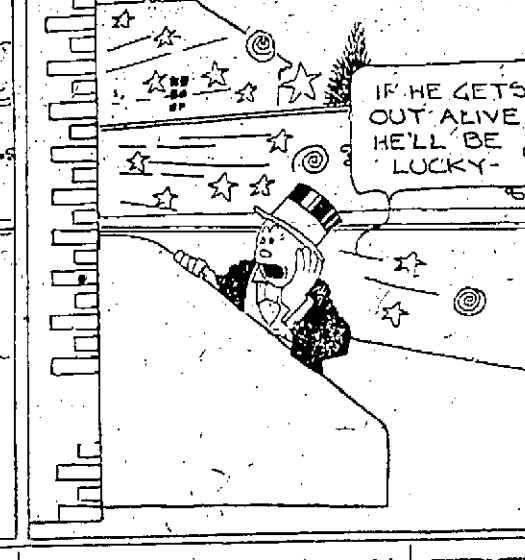

"An organism means diversity of function united for the common good. The higher the organism, the more are the functions specialized, and the more does the whole organism depend upon the efficiency of every organ in the total body.

Church is Organism

"In the twelfth chapter of I Corinthians, the Apostle Paul thinks of the church as such an organism. Indeed, while he speaks specifically of the church, he seems to have in mind also the whole of society as such an organism. Such is also the best modern conception of humanity, a great throbbing, vital organism, each individual and group contributing its all to the welfare of the whole, the whole striving to establish and maintain the complete health of all the parts.

"So each great group within the whole is an organism, a living being. Paul thinks of the church as being like the human body, and indicates how each organ of the body contributes its particular share to the total life. He shows how, through the use of special gifts, the whole church is made strong. To the Christian, Christ is the head of the whole social organism, and there can be no healthy growth until that is recognized and the spirit and influence of Christ are made to flow through all national, economic and re-

HUSBANDS TO BLAME FOR MOST OF FAMILY ROWS CLAIMS JUDGE

Right Kind of Punishment for Husbands Will End Marital Troubles He Declares

NEW YORK.—Magistrate John Koehendörfer of this city has begun to put into effect his doctrine, recently expounded, that the right kind of punishment for erring husbands will end marital infelicity.

Holding that husbands are to blame for seven-eighths of all domestic rows, the magistrate announced that instead of sending them to jail, he would sentence them to any one of ten tasks they might choose. Then, the next convicted husband who was arraigned before him for abusing his wife was ordered to: do common housework for a week, or go to the workhouse.

The choices Magistrate Koehendörfer allows his prisoners follow: Prepare the family breakfast every morning.

Take care of the children one hour every day.

Buy candy and fruit for the wife and children once a week.

Stay home one night a week.

Take the family out every Sunday, to church in the morning and for a walk in the afternoon.

Allow the wife to handle the finances of the family.

Start a savings bank account.

Wait on himself instead of asking the wife to wait on him.

Repeat every day to his wife, at least once, his marriage vows.

Wash the dishes every night.

Magistrate Koehendörfer says that few men recognize the daily monotony of a woman's life in keeping a household together on small pay. The men have some variety even if only in going from their homes to their offices but the wives are sentenced to monotonous drudgery.

"Men who abuse their wives need waking up more than they need jail," the Magistrate expounded. "The average man would be cured permanently if he could be set to the tasks to which his wife is committed and thus learn how much less attractive is her day than his."

MOVIE MEN DISCUSS BETTER PICTURES AT MINNEAPOLIS MEET

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Censorship problems, better and cleaner pictures, plans for conducting Americanization work through the movies, and a dispute between the exhibitors and producers who have entered the exhibiting field, will be questions discussed by delegates to the annual convention of the motion picture theater owners of America, which opened a three-day session here Monday.

One important plan for consideration will be the developing of the vocational guidance idea in all American theaters. This is the outgrowth of a plan laid before President Harding whereby all theaters would be thrown open to the public free of charge on Saturday mornings for educational films. The subjects would include child welfare, domestic science, various phases of the arts and science and would be in effect, a correspondence school for which no fee would be charged.

Master and Servant in China

In China no feature of society is more curious than the relation between master and servant. If the servant be of the military class, he is admitted to the intimate society of his master, but never takes a liberty. At dinner having taken his place with the utmost humility, he joins in the conversation, addressing freely, not only his master, but also guests of the

Save the Flowers

It is said that motoring into the country is one of the finest nerve tonics and sources of mental health. If this be true—and few motorists will doubt it—it behooves all motorists to prevent the destruction of their own thoughtlessness of the very beauty they go out to enjoy. Heedless motorists, by indiscriminately picking wild flowers, are threatening to ruin their own next year's pleasure.

The spots where wild flowers grow, which used to be visited by only a few country neighbors, have become places of resort for multitudes of visitors from a distance. The few handfuls of blossoms which were picked by the country people were easily spared by the plants, but now every attractive blossom runs the risk of being gathered, only to rot on the garbage pile. Near large towns and sometimes far into the country, rare flowers are practically exterminated and common flowers are becoming rare.

The motorist who knows the flowers exercises judgment in what he picks, but there ought to be more motorists to know, and who will take an interest in spreading their knowledge! There are some flowers which are in danger of extermination over wide areas, and the extermination of which would make far less pleasure to all who visit the country on future trips; namely, the cardinal flower, the various lady-slippers, and all our native orchids. There are others which are jeopardized in some places, and which are growing thinly in others: the trillium, the pasque flower, the columbine, and trailing arbutus. Before long the wild flowers will need retreats, like the other forms of wild life, the protection of which is already recognized as the policy necessary to keep Wisconsin an interesting place to live in. The "Friends of Our Native Landscape of Wisconsin" are seeking to interest the residents of the state in keeping Wisconsin beautiful.

Moderation at Last

THERE has probably been no development in the Irish situation since the culmination of the Sinn Fein movement that approaches in significance the letter of Lloyd George to De Valera, president of the Irish Republic, in which he requests a conference to explore the possibilities of a settlement. Quite evidently it marks a turning in the policy of the British government, for hitherto its attitude has been, even if it dodged the frank declaration of it, refusal to recognize Sinn Fein as anything more significant than a rebellious organization of malcontents. It has endeavored to deal with the Irish republic as a treasonous conspiracy rather than an expression of popular spirit in step with the times. How far it has been driven from this reactionary hypothesis is well illustrated by the fact that the British premier addressed Mr. De Valera as "the chosen leader of a great majority in southern Ireland." It is a hopeful sign that the government is willing to face realities instead of clinging to fictions which were pitifully at odds with the actual conditions.

But, important as is this volte-face in the attitude of the British government, from the practical standpoint it is probably more significant that the letter to Mr. De Valera was made public. Rumors of private conversations seeking a reconciliation and settlement have been numerous in the past few months, but have been steadily refused confirmation by authorities of either side. That a public invitation for conference should be extended can hardly mean anything else than that the government has received assurance from Sinn Fein that the suggestion will be favorably received. Had there not been some such assurance, the offer would have been denied all publicity. It is a reasonable inference that Mr. Lloyd George knows that his proposal is to be accepted, and the fact argues a conciliatory disposition on both sides likely to be extremely useful in reaching a settlement.

The world has reason to be glad. The reign of murder, arson and assassination in Ireland has become a stench in the nostrils of civilization. It was long since time that measures to compose the differences of the two factions were undertaken. Particularly in this country, where there are more Irish-blooded folks than there are in Erin, will the news be well-received. Recognition of Sinn Fein as the qualified spokesman of the Irish people is what they have been fighting for, in large measure, and this recognition seems to have been won, at least to a great extent. And if Sinn Fein is willing to discuss the situation with the British government it can only mean, in view of its repeated refusals of any recognition to the crown or its representatives, that it has assurances regarded as sufficient that the discussion will take a line compatible with Irish aspirations. It is a great step forward toward a sensible arrangement in Ireland, and in all the circumstances it appears reasonable to hope that the necessary steps toward that goal will follow.

Some such thing has been bound to occur. Decent public opinion in England, as well as outside, has been revolted by the "iron hand" policy of its government. Even prominent army and navy leaders have publicly expressed their horror of the bloodshed and cruelty which vainly endeavored to crush the Irish movement. Mr. Lloyd George was very near losing his grip on the government in consequence. In several recent by-elections the Irish policy has been in issue, and in most of them the moderate candidates won. To continue the policy, particularly as its result was only a new demonstration of the fact that the spirit of freedom thrives under oppression, was ultimately to bring a collision with parliament and a general election in which the coalition government had no reason for optimism. British underlying insistence upon fair play has at last risen and spoken emphatically to its government. This is the interpretation that recent events seem to place on the new turn of affairs.

What's a Baby Worth?

HERE'S an editorial, recently published, which has a queer slant on human values:

The marriage of Miss Lolita Ogden Armour and John J. Mitchell, Jr., united family fortunes of $130,000,000.

If a child is born, many will say of him, "He is worth $130,000,000."

Using "worth" in its true sense, was there ever a child born who, relatively, was worth anything like that sum? If so, who?

Who? Almost anybody's.

Brother, a thing is worth whatever you have to pay for it—so says the law of supply and demand. Well, there are several million youngsters in this country whose folks would just laugh if you offered 'em $130,000,000 or any other sum of money for their babes. "Relatively" is right!

The La Crosse Plumbing and Supply company this morning applied for an injunction to prevent work on the land in the rear of their warehouse, which city officials recently condemned for park purposes. The injunction, if granted, will stop all work on Riverside park south of Pearl street and in all probability will be merely the first of a series of similar cases against the city by those whose property has been condemned.

As a result of the tour twenty-four saloonkeepers have received notices to appear tonight before the committee and tell why they are violating the city ordinances governing wineries.

The City Mission will hold its annual picnic at French Island tomorrow. There are forty in the class. The court judge's office in the court room is to be remodeled within the next month. A fireproof vault will also be installed.

DOREEN

By ROSE MEREDITH

Miss Mamie Smith left the post office and stepped down the village street with eager feet. Her faded eyes were fixed on Emeline Taylor's little brown house, and with the enthusiasm of the born gossip she was picturing the cozy warmth of Mrs. Taylor's sitting room, and hoping that the old lady was all alone.

"I've got to know about this postal card—she's so closemouthed. It's a wonder she would let me stop for her mail. But I suppose Mamie Weed can't be trusted, she's such a feather-headed piece to take care of a sick woman if it is only rheumatiz!" Her thin, pink nose quivered like an agitated rabbit's as she went into the yard and around the path to the side door entrance, where glass doors led into a neatly furnished sitting room where a white-haired woman sat in a deep cushioned chair.

"Well, Emeline, here I be, faithful as ever," greeted Miss Mamie as she opened the door and walked in. Her sharp eyes darted to the kitchen beyond, where Mamie Weed was clattering around in a headless way, leaving untidiness behind her and creating agony in the soul of Emeline Taylor, the neatest housekeeper in the whole country.

"It's real good of you, Mamie," said the sick woman gratefully. "Some day I'm going to make it all right with you for all your kindness."

"I don't want anything," assured Miss Mamie, turning very red. "I'm always glad to do something for a sick neighbor, and you know I live next door. The 'Weekly Times,' a letter from Robin and a postcard—there that's a nice bunch!"

Mrs. Taylor smiled in a tight-lipped way as she took the letters in her swollen hands. "Thank you, Mamie," she said quietly.

Miss Mamie's face fell. "Ain't you going to read Robin's letter? I'll be looking at the paper a minute and maybe there's some news you'd want to tell me."

"He is so busy—traveling most of the time—he doesn't have time to write much," defended Robin Taylor's mother.

"I expect his wife travels with him," ventured Mamie.

"Possibly," said Mrs. Taylor crisply.

Mamie rose to go. "I thought maybe he'd be coming down here."

"Some day," and Mrs. Taylor turned her head toward the kitchen. "You can make me some toast, Mamie," she called.

"Well, good-by," said Mamie, as she went out through the glass doors into the pleasant old garden, neglected now that Robin was away and his mother was tied to her chair. The whole village knew more about her affairs than Emeline Taylor suspected.

They knew, somehow, that Robin had telephoned home from Chicago that he was going to marry "Doreen," and they knew that Mrs. Taylor had telegraphed him not to do it—and Robin had married the city girl; and although three months had passed his mother refused to forgive him or see the young couple. He didn't even know that his mother was crippled with rheumatism, for she wrote to him faithfully every week, acknowledging receipt of the checks he regularly sent her, though she never cashed the checks and never mentioned the name of Robin's unknown wife in her letters.

Lately she had formed the habit of putting his letters away unopened. The fact that he could write meant that he was well. Now she kissed his letter passionately and put it away with the others, but the postcard she looked at with interest. It showed the New York Botanical Gardens, and off on the sky line was an arrow in ink.

"We are keeping house here—you must come down and stay with us. Love to you, Doreen."

The arrow pointed to a tall apartment house.

"Sending her love to me" sobbed Emeline Taylor angrily as she tore the postal in two and tossed it into the coal hod by the drum stove.

"Mittie, is tea ready?"

Mittie Weed came scuffling her feet while her dark eyes, scanning the room, discovered the agitated face of her mistress, the nurse and latter church.

ed in her hand and the torn postcard in her coat pocket. In a trice Mittie had moved a small mahogany stand beside the big chair, placed the little tray, with its steaming pot of tea, its plate of hot toast and dish of quince jelly, deftly spread a damask napkin over Mrs. Taylor's folded hands, uncovered the sugar bowl and cream jug, and, picking up the coal hod, vanished into the kitchen.

Here, alone, she drew out the torn postal and studied it with pining eyes. "That girl ought to be here looking out for his ma! If I had a mother-in-law—!" Mittie wagged her untidy head and pulled some letter paper from a corner cupboard.

Ten days later Mittie startled Mrs. Taylor by giving notice and leaving at once. "You can easily get some one else, Miss Taylor," said the girl, stubbornly, when her employer protested that she could not stay alone.

"I know a girl who would come and live with you."

"Who is she?" snapped the old lady.

Mittie didn't hear. "I'll send her around tonight, Miss Taylor," and the door closed behind her.

"Ingratitude!" muttered Emeline Taylor as she sat there alone, helplessly bound to her chair.

At 5 o'clock came a knock at the door.

"Come in," she quavered.

A girl came in. She was not very tall nor so very pretty, but she had a fresh, colorful face, with bright brown eyes and ruddy brown hair; her pretty hands were capable looking and her dress was neat and dainty.

"Mittie Weed said you wanted some one to help you," she began. "I can cook and sew and nurse you—and I am not afraid of hard work."

Emeline Taylor smiled in a wintry way. "You look as though you would be pleasant to have around—but, what is your name?"

"I am John Dixon's daughter," said the girl slowly. "My father calls me Johnny."

"John Dixon's daughter?" Mrs.

"SMITHY" SMITH'S PARACHUTE PROVES POPULAR WITH BOYS

"Ever make one of these, fellows?" As "Smithy" Smith walked up to some of the other members of the Rockvale Boys' Club he pulled from his hip pocket a long thing that seemed to consist mostly of colored tissue paper wrapped around a stick.

"What is it?" asked Bill Parker. "Parachute," replied Smithy. "You shoot it 'way up into the air from a rubber shooter. Good Fourth of July stunt."

"How did you make it?" "First, he had whittled a tough stick of wood about twenty inches long so it looked something like the hooked stick in the illustration. One end, the top, was whittled into a hook, and the other, the bottom, was whittled so it was a bit heavier than the top.

Next, he had cut a large piece of colored tissue paper into the scalloped shape shown in the diagram. Through each scallop he had tied a piece of string and to re-enforce the holes had pasted small pieces of tough brown paper around them. Then he had carefully stuck the hooked end of stick through the exact middle of the tissue paper and tied the strings around the stick so the paper could spread out like a real parachute.

To throw the parachute into the air a rubber shooter is necessary, so Smithy made one, using a crocheted stick of wood and a strong piece of rubber. Then came the trial flight.

Smithy placed the hooked end of the stick over the rubber band and drew it far back. When he let go the parachute, folded up, shot high into the air like an arrow, then unfolded and floated to the ground.

BOYS OF THIS HIGH SCHOOL HOLD "FIND YOURSELF" CAMPAIGN

"What do I want to be?" Few boys know exactly what they would like to become. Most have only a hazy notion, if any at all. So, East-High School, Cleveland, Ohio, recently conducted a "Find Yourself" Campaign.

Interviews were arranged with a number of Cleveland business and professional men so the boys of the school could talk over the problem of finding one's self.

A census taken after the campaign showed that ninety-five per cent of the boys thought it was worth while, two per cent "had nothing to say," and three per cent were disappointed.

RAIN BADLY NEEDED THROUGH THE STATE SAYS CROP EXPERT

Small Grain Ripening Prematurely and Pastures Drying up Becker Reports

MADISON, Wis.—Rain is the great need of Wisconsin crops as a result of the excessive hot weather during the past week, Joseph A. Becker of the co-operative crop reporting service says in his weekly report. All crops except corn and potatoes have been injured through lack of moisture.

Small grain is said to be ripening prematurely, while hay and pastures are burning up for lack of rain, with this condition especially severe in eastern and southeastern counties.

Rye is fairly well filled, but winter wheat is light and attacked by rust according to the report. Spring grains are filling rapidly and at an unusually low height and are showing the effect of rust in the southern counties. Rain is badly needed to insure filled grain, with some of the fields in northern Wisconsin badly lodged.

Corn grew rapidly as a result of ten days of "corn weather," the report states, adding that the fields are clean of weeds because of uninterrupted cultivation. Some acreage in southern Wisconsin is spotted but in other sections the stand is reported as good.

Potatoes are said to have suffered little from the heat. They would, however, be greatly benefited by rain. Early varieties are now in blossom, and the late varieties practically all planted. Leaf hoppers are reported as doing some damage to the crop but small compared to last year.

Hay cutting which goes on generally is bringing a light yield. Alfalfa cutting has shown a heavy crop. Planting of tobacco is being done without interruption, with the early plants well cultivated and in good condition. Rain will soon be needed to insure steady growth. The stand of sugar beets is but fair, the report says.

The harvest of early canning peas has been hastened by hot weather, and is nearly completed in southern and eastern Wisconsin. The yield is said to be greatly reduced. Late varieties are maturing prematurely with very poor yield in prospect unless rain falls at once.

The Mardi Gras of Paris is now only an illusion. The celebration is now mainly confined to the students and lacks picturesque flamboyance.

The Screen

AT THE THEATERS TODAY
Rivoli—William Christy Cabanne's "The Stealers"; comedy, "Handy Husband"; and Walter Goetzinger at the organ.
Strand—Jack Pickford in "The Man Who Had Everything"; comedy, "A Bunch of Kisses"; Chester Wright at the organ.
Casino—Great racing spectacle, "The Handicap"; comedy, "His Noisy Still"; Maurice Tourneur's master piece, "The Great Redeemer"; comedy, "Foot Prints."

"THE STEALERS"—RIVOLI
William Christy Cabanne's powerful story, "The Stealers," the Robertson-Cole super-special which opens at the Rivoli Theatre today for a run of three days is a noteworthy event in the motion picture world not only because of the driving force of its theme but because it bids fair to revolutionize the artistry of the screen.
Mr. Cabanne, the writer and director of the famous story, is also an expert in the technique of the camera. He has always believed in the expression of emotional shades through the use of colors in pictures and this he has achieved in "The Stealers." The play, therefore, is the first in the history of the motion picture to display this engaging and novel feature.

"GREAT REDEEMER"—STRAND
Capacity audiences at the Casino Theatre yesterday derived great enjoyment from the first showing of the Maurice Tourneur super production of "The Great Redeemer."
An all-star cast including House Peters and Marjorie Daw. "The Great Redeemer" at the Strand today and Tuesday, narrates the high lights in the career of Dan Mallory, a train band. Pursued by a sheriff's posse, he takes refuge in the mountain cabin of a beautiful young girl. She comes to love him and he, when a pal induces him to have another try at holding up the mail train. This he does, but is captured and sent to prison. There the work of reform begun by the girl is completed when a miracle happens in the grain mill and Dan Mallory finds his soul. House Peters is excellent as Dan, and Miss Daw gives a sweetly sympathetic impersonation of the girl in the story. Others in the all-star cast are Jack MacDonald and Joseph Singleton.

"THE HANDICAP"—CASINO
Thrills, action, action a plenty and sensational riding are a few of the many features that go so far toward making "The Handicap," a racing drama, the offering at the Casino today and Tuesday the great picture success that it has proven to be. Headed by the peerless screen favorite, Violet Hopson, the story is one of racing intrigue, conspiracy and jealousy in which an American horse breeder and turf enthusiast who has gone to England to win added glory for his stable meets with the girl of his choice, also the owner of a racing string and the victim of a clique of turf crooks, wins her love and several of the local classic racing events. The scenes are all laid on the historic course of Epsom Downs, in England. The leading roles are played by the popular screen favorites, Violet Hopson and Stewart Rome.

JACK PICKFORD—RIVIERA
In presenting "The Man Who Had Everything," the Riviera today and Tuesday will give to its patrons an opportunity to view one of the most expensive productions of the Goldwyn Studios. In addition to its being one of the best screen versions of an up to date story with a punch in it, Jack Pickford is the star, and he is supported by an excellent cast. As Harry Bullway, son of a multi-millionaire, he runs riot with his father's fortune, and lays at the feet of Lenore Pennington, the baby vamp, gifts of fabulous price. For this reason the scenes of this picture were built to convey the impression of great wealth, and Al Green, director of "The Man Who Had Everything," never lets the audience lose sight of the fact that he did have everything.

Beaver Farming in Canada
Several farmers of Alberta, Canada, have commenced to cultivate the beavers for their skins. The work is started by locating a beaver dam and enclosing it with a wire mesh which will allow the animals sufficient room and then as they increase in numbers and removed. The Government is granting licenses for this industry.

EDITH EBERHART IS FORTUNATE WINNER OF BRIDE'S BOUQUET

ONE of the pretty features of the marriage Saturday night of Mr. Frederick Soule and Miss Gertrude Eberhart at the First Methodist church was the carrying out of the "good luck" of throwing the bridal bouquet, one of the traditional customs of the bride. With a bevy of pretty young society buds in waiting, Miss Edith Eberhart was the fortunate one in securing the coveted prize, for although it was not only a beautiful token to possess, it also a "lucky" one. Miss Eberhart, announced Miss Eberhart as the very next bride. Gowned in a gaslight green filmy frock with which she wore a chic loghorn hat, it was a lovely sight. Miss Eberhart announced that she was going to have the bouquet pressed under glass as a memento, a custom now in vogue in the city.

Although a ring, a thimble and a piece of money were put in the bride's cake and they are known to have been in pieces served, it was not ascertained who were the fortunate ones. After various disadvantages the bride and bridegroom succeeded in getting away and telephoned their arrival Saturday night at the lighthouse cottage at Lake Coteau.

TURNED IN TOES AND HIGH HEELS

The "quarter of six" position of the foot, which has been taught to children for generations, is all wrong according to Dr. W. H. Trethowan, an English orthopedic surgeon, who delivered a lecture on Healthy Feet at the London Institute of Hygiene. He also says that high heels are all right. "Remember the foot is a lever to push the body along and you can only get the full effect of the lever by placing all the toes straight upon the ground. The savage walks correctly. His foot points straight ahead of him and as he finishes each step he turns his foot in so as to get the full benefit of the toes." In putting his approval on high heels he does not refer to those of three and four inches, but he says a moderately high heel is advisable; two and a half inches is about the limit.

FARMING BY SYNDICATES

According to Professor John J. Thelan, of the Massachusetts Agricultural college, the business of farming will, in the near future, be conducted by well-organized business companies, rather than by the individual farmer. The work had grown too big for him and one person is not usually able to handle the details of the different branches of the farm work. In other words, like many other trades and professions, that of farming is becoming specialized. As an evidence of this is cited the instance of a man who lives in comfort upon the proceeds of a ten-acre cherry orchard.

The owner has but to care for the trees and see that the soil is tilled occasionally, but the matter of harvesting the crop is taken care of by the outside organization, which picks the fruit, packs and markets it.

MAJORITY OF YOUNG PEOPLE IN RUSSIA ARE BOLSHEVISTS

Communism Taught in Public Schools Under the Soviet System

MICA—Most of the younger generation of Russians are Bolshevists, says Captain Merion C. Cooper, of Jacksonville, Fla., the American flyer who was captured by Russians while serving in the Polish army and recently escaped from a Moscow prison. He attributes this to the Bolshevik educational system, under which Communism is taught in the schools.

"The schools are all red," he said, "and the educational program prescribes that the first thing to be developed in the mind of the child is the 'revolutionary conscience.' In prison, I saw several times children visit their parents, the latter being anti-Bolshevik. The children were 'reds' and accepted their parents' imprisonment philosophically, wondering how they could go against the tenets they had been taught to absorb in the classroom."

Visiting with this system of educating the children, said Captain Cooper, is the wonderful propaganda system by which the Bolsheviks attempt to convert the adults.

"Their Communist lecturers work even in the prisons, trying to convert the prisoners," he continued. "They even tried it on me. There were lectures or classes held very frequently. If a man said he was converted and could convince the prison committee of that fact, he generally was released."

"Further in the line of skilled propaganda was the excellent treatment of the Polish war prisoners just before they were returned to Poland, under the repatriation agreement of the Polish-Russian peace treaty. Before each bunch was repatriated all of the soldiers in it were given new clothes and new shoes, being well fed for several weeks, so that when they arrived in Poland they all looked well fed, well dressed and, in short, were walking advertisements for the Soviet government."

Generally, Capt. Cooper said, conditions in the prisons were very bad from the standpoint of diet, but that he received no personal ill-treatment.

Are You Experiencing Trouble with Pneumatic Tire Equipment?

Read what the Central Minnesota Bus Line Co., of Kansas City, Mo., have to say of their tire troubles.

"We found after using all makes of pneumatic tires, our cost of operation was so great we were obliged to get some other type of tire for our rear wheels. We finally changed one bus last July to Firestone Cushion tires on rear wheels and have since changed all our busses to the same equipment. The first set have run 4,000 MILES and are still going."

This bus company on pneumatics had a tire cost approximately of $10.92 each day per bus.

With Firestone Cushion Tires they reduced their tire expenses $9.00 per day or $1.08 a day for tires.

Their profits were increased on each bus from $8.00 per day to $17.00 per day.

Mr. Barone, the president, is operating seven two ton white busses. He finally changed one bus from pneumatics to Firestone Cushions. Since this change-over he has made the same change on all of these busses.

Let us show you the rest of Mr. Barone's letter. Perhaps we can solve your tire problem and reduce your tire cost with

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN STORES LOOTED FOR $1,000 IN PROPERTY

Enter Jewelry and Hardware Store and Escape With Rings, Watches and Brooches

ROBBERY SAID TO HAVE OCCURRED EARLY MONDAY

No Trace of Thieves Found in Search as Yet

Escaping with $1000 worth of wrist watches, rings and brooches burglars broke into a hardware and jewelry store owned by J. Suhada at Prairie du Chien early Monday morning, according to communication received by the local police department here.

While no definite information regarding the robbery was learned here it was said that it probably occurred during the early morning hours on Monday. Bandits entered the hardware store through two windows in the rear, it was said, and several cheap watches were taken.

The bandits gained entrance to the jewelry store by breaking two small windows. Taking inventory of the stock Monday morning, it was found that about $1000 worth of watches, rings and brooches was missing.

According to the communication from Prairie du Chien, the thieves were alleged to have left the city on a Burlington which arrives here at 3:12 in the morning. Receiving the information too late to make a search of the train here, the local police wired ahead to the train, but found that no passengers were taken on at Prairie du Chien.

Dynamite Scattered the Wolves

The women of an Indian encampment of northern Ontario were attacked by timber wolves while the men were absent trapping. With the few rifles left in the camp, the women defended themselves until the ammunition gave out and their situation became perilous. An Indian boy thought of some sticks of dynamite for use in lakes when fishing was bad. A bundle of them with caps and fuses was thrown among the wolves and the explosion killed 36 wolves and frightened off the remainder.

Long For Ancient Custom

The harem of Turkey has very largely disappeared owing to compulsory economies. Among the peasants it was customary to maintain a portion of the house for the exclusive use of the women and children, and this is also being changed. Many Turkish women deplore the necessity which compels them to "live like poor Europeans." They declare that they were happier when living apart from the men and that their homes were easier to manage and the men, too.

Trade in Ratskins

Has the Board of Agriculture found any commercial use for ratskins? Colonel Sir Charles Vane asked in the House of Commons.

Sir A. Rosenheim, in reply, said that on a small scale ratskins had been utilized for the manufacture of gloves, slippers and similar articles. Experiments had been undertaken by the rat officer to the L. C. C., but up to the present the experiment had not been carried sufficiently far to enable any definite conclusion to be drawn as to the commercial value of ratskins.

Teetering on the Brink

After a sermon by an old colored preacher one of the brethren said to him: "Br'er Jenkins, how far off you reckon, hell is?"

"How old is you, Br'er Thomas?" asked the preacher.

"Well, son, of I don't miss my calculations I is sixty-to."

"Well," said the preacher, "ween you was born later dis world, hell wuz jus' sixty-to years off, an' all I got ter say, of you ain't in sight or it now, it ain't yo' fault!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Lost in the Bush

In Australia it is an easy matter to become lost in the dense bush and the alarm is often sent out for a lost child. Everybody joins in the search and the "Black Trackers" are sent for. These are Australian aborigines kept by the police and used by them as human blood hounds. It is an extraordinary sight to see these men creeping along the ground like wild animals following tracks that a white man cannot see.

Lightning Does Strike Twice

This old adage that "lightning never strikes in the same place twice" has been discredited by the Department of agriculture, the officials of which are enabled to show that in the observations of the forestry lands in the control of the department there are well marked zones where lightning strikes with great frequency. Lightning strikes third among the causes of forest fires. Careless campers are first on the list and locomotives second.

BOARD OF REVIEW BEGINS SESSIONS TO EQUALIZE 1921 TAX

Assessment Books Distributed; Board to Meet Daily to Receive Complaints

The board of review for the city of La Crosse met Monday morning to begin work on the equalization of the 1921 assessments.

Tax Commissioner, Joseph J. Frisch informed the Board that there were no protests on hand which could be conveniently studied Monday. He stated that the City Clerk had distributed the book containing all the assessments on real estate the latter part of last week, and citizens had not yet been afforded an opportunity to review it sufficiently to file many complaints. The Board then adjourned to reconvene daily until all work is finished which should be not later than Aug. first. The members of the Board of Review are Mayor, City Clerk, City Attorney, the two Assessors and the Tax Commissioner.

FEDERAL RAIL BOARD EXTENDS WAGE ORDER TO OTHER RAILROADS

Reduction Effective July First for Practically all of Big Roads of U. S.

CHICAGO, Ill.—The United States Railroad Labor board Monday extended its wage reduction order, effective July first, to practically every large railroad in the country. No change from the average 12 per cent reduction granted 104 carriers on June 1 was made by today's decision. The board's order Monday covered 210 roads. The reduction order involved practically all classes of employees on virtually every railroad known as a class 1 carrier, which was not included in the board's original reduction order. The Class 1 group includes every big road in the country. The only change in the rates of reduction made by the decision was in the case of some marine workers.

LABOR DICTATORSHIP REJECTED AS PART OF SOCIALISTS' PROGRAM

Convention Votes Down Resolution Declaring for Dictatorship by the Proletariat

VICTOR BERGER ATTACKS THE REDS WITHIN THE PARTY

Monday's Session to Define Party Stand on Strikes

DETROIT, Mich.—A resolution inviting all radical organizations of the United States to a conference next year to form an alliance to prevent future wars by the threat of general strikes was introduced in the socialist convention Monday.

The Wisconsin delegation is sponsor for the move and Mayor Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee introduced the resolution. It would invite the farmer labor party and various labor unions, including the mine workers, machinists and some of the railroad groups, to the conference.

DETROIT, Mich.—The Socialist national convention Sunday killed three resolutions which sought to define "dictatorship by the proletariat" as a part of socialist policy, and then overwhelmed two others which asserted the dictatorship is not at this time an issue. The session ended with all reference to working class dictatorship barred from the party policy.

The fight against inclusion of the dictatorship was waged by Morris Hillquit, Victor Berger, Algeron Lee, and Cameron King of California.

"Inseparable from Terror"

They branded it as inseparably linked in American minds with the Red terror in Russia, and declared it was useless to fix a policy which never would be called into play unless, in some distant future, a socialist revolution takes place.

"Why dictate in 1921 what our grandchildren shall do in 1980?" Berger asked, while King declared "the terror is inseparable from dictatorship of the proletariat. You have got to have the terror to put it over."

Berger Attacks Communists
The fight was enlivened when Victor Berger attacked the Communists within the party.

The socialist policy toward general and political strikes and its attitude toward organized labor was up for decision in the convention Monday.

BANGOR MEN HELD AUTO, LIQUOR STILL SEIZED BY POLICE

Sullivan, started for Bangor. Arriving there the real exciting time of the evening raid started.

The sheriff and policeman first went to the home of Harvey Morris. They were refused an entrance and were forced to break in. Morris offered little resistance and was put under arrest. Then the officers went to the home of Timothy Root, a blacksmith, alleged to have been the second man who was in the moonshine car in Sparta.

Threatens to Shoot

There a different reception awaited them. After breaking into the house, Root defied the officers to arrest him. It is alleged, retreating to the head of the stairs, he grasped an automatic pistol, and threatened. It looked like bloodshed until the sheriff hit on the plan of pushing him ahead of them. They advanced on Root and captured him. Both prisoners were taken to Sparta. At the police headquarters they said, it is alleged, they had walked back to Bangor along the river bottom, after they had broken away from the police.

Davis returned to Bangor and searched the Morris and Root premises. He confiscated a complete still at the Morris home, it is said.

BLAINE EXPECTED TO ASK NEW TAX LAW TO RELIEVE SITUATION

purposes not considered by the finance committee because of its report on the basis of passage of the Hrist bill.

On June 18 the general fund had slightly over $8,100,000 available, an amount somewhat lower than had been expected. All conditions considered, it is thought that the governor will find the expenditures authorized for the coming two years in excess of the receipts by about $3,500,000.

Crisis Comes Wednesday

The financial situation of the state will be brought to a crisis this week, probably not later than Wednesday, when the legislature presents to the governor, the board of control, university and normal school appropriation measures. It is intimated here that if there is any indication of a shortage of money the governor will refuse to sign both the university and normal bills and will call upon the legislature to enact some tax measure to give relief.

Governor Blaine does not favor any increases in the general property taxes of the state. It is believed that he will send a message to the legislature urging a revision of the income tax law.

It is not likely that the legislature will be called back to Madison this week. The indications are that the governor may ask to have the legislature returned about July 6 or 7. Should it be found, however, that some way can be worked out to meet the financial conditions without additional income taxes, the governor will not recall the legislature. Every indication, however, is to the contrary.

ITALIAN PREMIER AND HIS CABINET RESIGN OFFICES

Action Follows Vote of Confidence in Chamber of Deputies

ROME.—By The Associated Press.—The cabinet of Premier Giolitti resigned Monday morning. The resignation resulted from Sunday's vote in the chamber of deputies on the question of confidence in the government, which was regarded as unfavorable.

The chamber of deputies voted confidence in the government, 234 to 200.

This expression from the chamber, came at the close of debate on the reply to the speech from the throne, in which the government's foreign policy was strongly attacked in some sections and warmly defended in others.

Count Sforza, the foreign minister, was an especial object of attack, members of the Fascisti being the most outspoken, while the nationalists, conservatives, socialists and others expressed disapproval at times while the foreign minister was speaking, notably when he took up the subject of Fiume and the treaty with the Jugo-Slavs signed at Rapallo.

LA CROSSE'S LARGEST CLOTHING HOUSE

BUSINESS HERE IS GOOD, SAYS COOPER AFTER EASTERN TOUR

Theater Owner Says La Crosse Prosperous After Viewing Conditions Elsewhere

You never appreciate what a fine place La Crosse is until you "get out among 'em" and see what cities in other parts of the state and nearby states are up against in the way of business. This is the way A. J. Cooper, president of the Cooper Amusement company, sums up his week's trip through Eastern Wisconsin, upper Illinois, Indiana and Michigan.

"La Crosse is really very prosperous compared with some of the cities I have visited," said Mr. Cooper. "One of the surest barometers of the condition of a community's purse is the number of persons who patronize a city's amusements. I investigated theater and other amusement conditions in such cities as Milwaukee, Madison, Chicago, Aurora, Elgin, Hammond, Crown Point, La Porte, South Bend, Ann Arbor and Detroit and I find that the proportion of theater patrons, considering its size, is really greater in La Crosse than anywhere else. I was in some of the finest theaters in the Middle West and about the only people they had in the house were the musicians. This means that there is more work, more business and more money in La Crosse than elsewhere.

"In La Crosse practically everybody is busy all day long. In other cities in the east there is not this activity, there are more people idle. Bank clearings in La Crosse show that business is going forward at a steady pace. Bank clearings elsewhere show greater fluctuations, indicating that business conditions are not as stable as in this city. And another thing, I was accompanied by my orchestra leader, Chester Wright, who, nearly roasted in Milwaukee, Chicago and Detroit. Boy it was hot that's another thing La Crosse should be tickled pink over and that is weather. You can't beat it anywhere in the middle west."

Mr. Cooper leaves today for Minneapolis to attend the National meeting of motion picture exhibitors and producers, which will last for three days. Every angle of the picture business is going to be dissected, held up to the view of all present and then "talked" into submission and a solution. Among the leaders in the theater field who will be at the meeting, are Marcus Loew, vaudeville king, Adolph

She pays 7,500 pounds for her oil in San Francisco and sells 800 tons of it at Stockholm for 8,000 pounds. The fuel is carried mostly in the double bottom, and therefore does not detract from the ship's cargo-carrying capacity.

NEW MARKET BUREAU TO BEGIN WORK AS SOON AS GOVERNOR SIGNS MEASURE

MADISON, Wis.—The new state department of markets will start functioning as soon as Governor Blaine can sign the creative act, which is expected within the next two weeks. Assurance has been given by the governor to friends of the measure that he will give his approval.

Edward Nordman, present director of the division of markets under the department of agriculture, will become commissioner of markets, under his own marketing department at a salary of $5,000 annually. L. G. Foster, assistant director, will remain as assistant head of the new department, while Alvin C. Reis becomes the commission's attorney with rank of assistant attorney general.

While the newly created department, the most important accomplishment of the legislature at this session, will have broad powers over business, there will be no attempt to interfere in any way with industry unless evidence points to definite established combinations in restraint of trade.

In any event no drive against business is contemplated in any form, according to representatives of the division who say that under the old law in existence for two years, they have had more power, if they cared to use it, than they have under the new law. Authority now granted the department, it is believed, will stand the test of constitutionality, and is backed up with real enforcement provisions.

It is understood that business interests are considering attacking the measure in the courts just as soon as test cases are brought. Mr. Reis, who drafted the measure, says that he feels no doubt concerning its constitutionality when brought up for scrutiny in any of its particulars.

Emphasis will be placed on the development of co-operative enterprises among farmers. The new marketing law in conjunction with the newly enacted co-operative law will combine to give Wisconsin the foundation for the establishment of the most complete system of co-operative associations among agricultural interests of any state in the union.

Each farmer organization will be directly responsible to the new department, with their financial conditions subject to review. Accounting systems will have to be uniform and the co-operative enterprises efficiently managed.

The department has $116,000 annually in addition to fees from the inspection work, to run on, double the amount granted by the last legislature. This fund does not open the way to great extension of activities such as opponents of the proposal said would happen, when debating on the floor of the legislature, according to members of the department.

Gradual development will make the department equal, and later probably leader of the industrial commission in importance and in the scope of the work under its direction, many members of the legislature believe. Agricultural and trade practices both will be dealt with and will continue to give cause for extension of activities, it is believed.

All "Wear-Ever" utensils are made of hard, cold-rolled, EXTRA-THICK sheet aluminum which has been subjected again and again to the enormous pressure of gigantic rolling mills. This makes the metal hard, dense, rigid and durable.

Because of this EXTRA thickness, extreme hardness and great density, the metal used in "Wear-Ever" utensils retains more heat than ordinary aluminum. Hence, "Wear-Ever" utensils cook more quickly and still use LESS FUEL than wares that are made in the usual manner.

RALLY IN EIGHTH WINS FOR LA CROSSE OVER BLAIR SUNDAY

Locals Count Three Runs in Last of Eighth and Emerge With 3 to 2 Win

VISITORS TAKE LEAD IN THIRD WITH TWO RUNS

Some Hurl in Good Style for the Local Club

Playing before one of the largest crowds that ever gathered for an exhibition of the national sport, the La Crosse baseball club with one big inning defeated the Blair aggregation at Copeland park Sunday afternoon by a score of 3 to 2. Post mortems declared the game one of the best seen at Copeland park this season.

Since, in his initial appearance for the local club, made an excellent showing and his work on the mound yesterday was highly acceptable to the crowded stands. He has been slated to pitch for the local aggregation for the remainder of the season.

With both teams playing tight baseball throughout, there were but two innings in which either of the clubs scored, Blair counting their two runs in the third inning. Every indication pointed to a La Crosse defeat until the locals put over a tally in the eighth which gave them a one run lead. Since, for the locals, and Crawford, pitching for the visiting nine, each allowed six hits and were credited with twelve strikeouts apiece. The local hurler showed excellent form in the ninth inning, when with two men down, man on second and third, he dropped the third batsman at the plate at a time when a hit would have tied the score and possibly lost the game.

The visiting aggregation started and completed their scoring of the game in the third inning. Crawford lead off with a neat single, followed by another of the same type by Nicholson. Stuve grounded out to first and Crawford and Nicholson crossed the plate on Benrud's hot smash for a single. Glassbrenner made the second out on a grounder and Torrason ended the inning by the same route. The visitors were held safely within check throughout the remainder of the game, with the exception of the ninth inning, when they threatened to score.

Locals in Double Play
Snapping a double play the local club made short work of the visitors in the sixth frame. Glassbrenner whiffed for the first out. Torrason reached first on Shinsbark's bad pass to first. Oliver grounded to Weisbro, who pegged second for Torrason and Oliver was out. Kabat to Weisbro. Safford led off in the eighth with a single and was sacrificed by Weisbro. Shinsbark reached first on a grounder to short and by this time the stands were up in the air. Safford went to third on the pass. Smith drove Safford to the plate with a single as Shinsbark advanced to third. Smith stole second. Since added another to the list of safeties scoring Shinsbark, but Smith was caught at the plate. Fuchs received a walk and Since scored the winning tally when Stuve made an overthrow to first on Weisbro's grounder. Kabat struck out.

The visitors netted two singles in succession after two men were down in the final frame, but were nipped when Nicholson whiffed for the third out.

DEMPSEY FINISHES HARD TRAINING IN RING SUNDAY LIGHT BOXING THIS WEEK

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Hard work is over for Jack Dempsey until he enters the ring at Boyle's thirty acres next Saturday afternoon, to defend his title against Georges Carpentier, champion of Europe. The champion was resting Monday, having finished his heavy work with the gloves Sunday. His final boxing Tuesday and Wednesday will be to speed him up and sharpen his judgment of distance.

Members of the champion's camp are well satisfied with his condition and their smiles tell of the confidence of those close to the title-holder. Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, and Teddy Hayes, his trainer, believe that Dempsey's biting power and speed are at the proper edge and that he will pick up speed during the final three days of the tapering off process.

Dempsey is beginning to show signs of nervousness and irritability, which indicates, his handlers say, that he is rapidly rounding into perfect fighting condition. The long strain of training apparently is getting on his nerves and his handlers are planning to humor him and nurse him along as carefully as possible for the next four days.

Freddie Welsh, another former lightweight champion, and Jack Root, who once fought Marvin Hart for the heavyweight championship, also were impressed with Dempsey's condition.

History of Prize Fighting Since Defeating of Paddy Ryan Is Divided Into Two Eras

The history of the modern prizefighting, generally considered to have started with the defeat of Paddy Ryan by John L. Sullivan at Mississippi City, Mass., February 7, 1882, may be divided roughly into two eras. The first, 20 years in length, ended when Jeffries stopped Bob Fitzsimmons for the second time on July 25, 1902, at San Francisco. "Jeff" having beaten all logical contenders, was starting down the list for the second time, preparatory to retiring and handling the title to Marvin Hart.

Sullivan's "reign" lasted ten years, during which the "Boston boy" defended his title in two major bouts. His memorable 75-round battle with Jake Kilrain was the last championship contest fought in America with bare knuckles. This fight, one of the most bitter in the history of the American ring, was preceded about a year by Sullivan's 33-round draw with Charley Mitchell at Chanilly, France.

The introduction of gloves changed the game. It suited Corbett's style of fighting and on September 7, 1892, "Gentleman Jim" was the victor over Sullivan in 21 rounds at New Orleans. La. Corbett's next important battle in which he successfully defended his title came when he stopped Charles Mitchell in three rounds at Jacksonville, Fla.

Fitzsimmons Up
Then "Ruby" Bob Fitzsimmons loomed up. "Fitz" met Corbett at Carson City, Nev., on March 17, 1897, and Corbett's supremacy was at an end. The heyday of Fitzsimmons, too, was comparatively short. He met James J. Jeffries in a Coney Island ring on June 9, 1899, and a new champion was enthroned who was to meet the greatest men of his day and retire undefeated until coaxed out of retirement.

Jeffries beat Fitzsimmons in eleven rounds. On November 3, 1899, "Jeff" won a referee's decision over Tom Sharkey at Coney Island in 25 rounds. In 1902, the big Californian headed Fitzsimmons' demands for a return match and again stopped the lanky Cornishman, this time in eight rounds at San Francisco.

It was another battle of champions when Jeffries met Corbett at San Francisco a year later. Again Jeffries was invincible, knocking

ANGELO MAN TO BE MONROE COUNTY'S NEW FARM AGENT

Winifred Rowan and John Bailey are Married in Sparta Catholic Church

SPARTA, Wis.—Monroe county has engaged Edward S. Leverich, son of J. E. Leverich of Angelo, as county agricultural agent. The special committee, authorized last fall by the county board, to hire an agricultural agent, was made up of George P. Stevens, Burr Nelson, M. M. Haney and J. E. Leverich. Mr. Leverich will begin his duties this fall. He is a graduate of the college of agriculture of the University of Wisconsin. At present he is engaged as agricultural agent in Door county.

Frank Greer, arrested at the Milwaukee station, June 12, with enough explosives on his person to blow up the town, waived examination Thursday morning before Justice Lamson and was bound over for trial on $2,000 bail.

Rowan-Bailey Nuptials

An impressive wedding service took place at the St. Patrick's Catholic church, Wednesday morning, June 22, at 8 o'clock, when Miss Winifred Rowan of La Crosse and John Bailey of the town of La Fayette were united in marriage by Rev. H. E. Moeck. Miss Ruth Rowan and Robert Rowan, sister and brother of the bride, attended the couple. The bride wore a tailored suit of blue tulle de chine and carried bouquet of roses and snapdragons. After the ceremony at the church, the wedding party took breakfast at Hotel Sidney. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey then departed for a wedding trip to The Dells, Lake Geneva, Beloit and other places. They will be at home after July 1, on a farm owned by Mr. Bailey on Rush Prairie. The bride is a graduate of Sparta high school, and a graduate nurse from the Grandview hospital in La Crosse. For the past two years she has been engaged as a nurse in Madison.

Mr. William C. Dean, chairman of the state central committee of the prohibition party of Wisconsin, spoke at the church during the service. His topic was "Law Enforcement." Rev. J. S. Morris, pastor of the Sparta Congregational church, spoke at the afternoon service in the church.

Rev. H. R. Kinley, pastor of the Methodist church in Elroy, completed the pulpit in the local Methodist church, Sunday morning and evening, in the absence of Rev. E. E. North, who is at Neenah-Menasha, attending the state convention of Christian Endeavorers. Mr. Kinley spoke from the topic "A Queen's Quest." Miss Harriet Herrman, director of music in the schools at Rochester, sang a solo at the morning service, "I Come to Thee."

Community Meeting

Next Sunday evening will be the first of the union community meetings, which will be held during the months of July and August, on the court house lawn. The usual Sunday evening services in the churches will be discontinued, and all will join in these outdoor meetings during the hot months. Good speakers and good music will be provided for each service.

WOMEN ARE BETTER WORKERS REPORTS ILLINOIS BUREAU

CHICAGO, Ill.—A surplus of men clerks and not enough women clerks to supply the demand was the situation reported Monday by the Illinois free employment bureau which gave the following reasons for the condition:

"Women don't cook their feet on the desk and criticize the boss; they don't waste thirty minutes a day scanning the sport pages; they don't leave the office at intervals to smoke a cigarette; their relatives are never in the way when the 'home team' is in town; they do not gather in groups to gossip; they don't swear; they don't flit; they don't boast; and they do the work assigned to them efficiently and without question."

LENINE IS STILL THE MOST POPULAR MAN IN RUSSIA

People Still Have Faith in Him Despite Dissatisfaction Says Returned Yank

RIGA, LATVIA.—Lenine's personality and the faith that most Russian peasants and workmen have in him, despite their dissatisfaction with conditions under which they are forced to live, is perhaps the one big factor that holds the Bolshevik regime in power, says Captain M. C. Cooper, of Jacksonville, Fla., who escaped from a prison camp near Moscow. Captain Cooper was flying for the Polish army when made prisoner in July, 1920.

"Lenine is still the most popular man in Russia," said Captain Cooper, "much more so than Trotsky. I found that the majority of peasants and workmen, even those in prison, believed in him. They are terrified by the 'Tcheka' or Counter Revolutionary Committee, which really is running things in Russia. But I believe that if the 'Tcheka' were abolished practically everybody would be for Lenine."

This, said Captain Cooper, is not hard to understand, for Lenine's pictures have been distributed everywhere. Travellers in Russia will see two of his pictures for every one of Trotsky.

Regarding the "Tcheka," which with its manifold branches and subdivisions that stretch out like the tentacles of an octopus into every village forming a combined supreme court, detective department and spy system, which has powers of life and death to "combat counter revolution," Captain Cooper said:

"The 'Tcheka' has every one ter-orized. The saying is that one in every four persons is a member of it or some other sort of spy. One of the Russian officers with whom I was imprisoned and who has been informed that he was to be released told me he was afraid to go home, as he had four children and was afraid one of them might be a spy."

Forty Years' Work on a Dictionary The work of compiling the Oxford dictionary, which has just been completed, has been going on forty years. When the first volume of the new work—which is said to be the greatest dictionary in the world—was published in an aeroplane was "a plane placed in the air for aerostatical experiment." A barrage meant a bar across a river. The words "garage" and "fuselage" did not exist in our tongue. The final entry is a strange word, "zyxt." Thus one Ken-ish feoman of the fourteenth century, meeting another, expressed his when he wanted to say "thou seest."

ONE ROBBERY IN 24 HOURS SETS A NEW RECORD IN CHICAGO

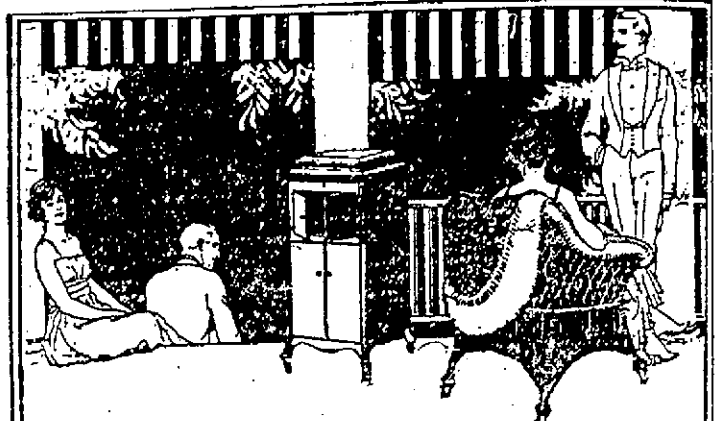

CHICAGO, Ill.—A new low record for Chicago hold-ups was said by the police to have been established when only one robbery was reported for twenty-four hours.

The decrease was said by Chief of Detectives Hughes to be due to acceptance of his recent advice to "pay by check and don't wear expensive jewelry."
